TOPDRESSING SMALL GRAIN WITH NITROGEN HELPS

Topdressing small grain with nitrogen can give a boost to small grain yields, says J. A. Smith, local county agent.

The agent says to plan now to topdress with nitrogine during February or early March, if lodging seems unlikely. The growth of small grain will determine to some extent how late to topdress. Under normal weather conditions, topdress during February and no later than March 15.

Various nitrogen materials are used successfully to topdress small grains. Both solid and liquid nitrogens are efficient. The important thing is to apply the proper amount. Generally, topdress small grain with 16 to 40 pounds of nitrogen per acre. If the small grain is to be used for pasture, silage or hay, the amount of nitrogen can be increased—in some cases up to 60 or 80 pounds per acre.

Apply part of the nitrogen and all the phosphate and potash at seeding. Then topdress with additional nitrogen during the winter if lodging is not expected. The use of the grain, soil condition, past fertilization and crops to follow will determine the exact amount to use.

Recent research conducted by the V. P. I. Agronomy Department showed how wheat, oat and barley yields go up when nitrogen is used as a topdressing. In the tests, part of the nitrogen was applied with phosphate and potash at seeding time in the fall. Then part of the small grain was dressed with 25 pounds of nitrogen per acre in the winter. The nitrogen topdressing increased wheat yields by 6.2 bushels, oat yields by 18.5 bushels, and barley yields by 10.9 bushels per acre.

Smith emphasizes that the amount of nitrogen to apply depends on the individual field condition. Nitrogen is an important plant food for a successful small grain crop.

Ration Coins in N. Y.

New York.- Pennies, nickels and quarters are now being rationed by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

A shortage of coins is the reason.

One of the reasons cited as contributing to the scarcity is the increased interest in coin collecting.

More Cuban refugees sign for aid in Miami.

Leaf Markets Near Sale End

As the current marketing season for dark-fired tobacco nears its end, with the warehouses scheduled to close down on Feb. 9, prices paid to growers have held extremely well, and there is a general feeling of satisfaction among growers.

There was continuing demand in the past week for lugs and some grades even advanced in prices offered.

On the Farmville market last week the price averaged $39.94.

One grower sold 972 pounds for an average of $58.77, considered a record dark-leaf sale.

However, due to the fact that most of the top grades of leaf have already been sold, the averages are expected to move somewhat lower during the final days of the season.

It is expected that although the markets will close on Feb. 9, there will be "clean-up" sales on Feb. 14 and 16th.

FARM PONDS POPULAR FOR IRRIGATION WATER

Farm ponds are increasingly popular in Virginia as a source of irrigation water - particularly for high-income crops like flue-cured tobacco, and truck crops.

And agricultural engineers at Virginia Polytechnic Institute say there are some tricks of the trade you should know before you construct a pond.

The engineers say to contact county agents and discuss the feasibility of using irrigation on your particular crop. The agent will also have suggestions on how to improve yield and quality of the crop. He may suggest alternatives to irrigation.

Check with the local ASC office to determine what cost-share payments are available in your county to help construct ponds. And the Soil Conservation Service technician can give help in planning.

Before planning and constructing a pond, consider water needs. Most vegetable crops and tobacco will require close to an acre-foot of water for every acre of crop to be irrigated. For example, if you planto irrigate 10 acres of crops, you will need at least 10 acre-of water stored in the farm pond. Pastures, orchards, and hay will require about 1 1-3 acre-feet of water for an acre of crop.

If the pond is to be used forother purposes, such as fishing, recreation, or stock watering, build additional capacity into it. For example, fish must have at least four feet of water remaining in the pond after the irrigation water is used.

To cut down on surface evaporation losses, plan a deep pond with as few shallow areas as possible.

And don't forget to figure the cost of the pond along with the cost of equipment in determining your investment in irrigation.

HEART FUND DRIVE SCHEDULED HERE

It was announced by Ivey Holland, chairman of "The Heart Fund" for Appomattox County, that the month of February will again be observed as Heart Month. Sunday, Feburary 26, has been designated as Heart Sunday by the American Heart Association.

The Heart and blood vessel diseases are the nation's number one health problem, taking more lives than all other causes combined. The Heart Fund is the community and nation's number one means of defense against these diseases. It supports research, education and community's service throughout the nation. More than 40 million dollars have been channeled into research alone in the past ten years by the American Heart Association. Impressive advances have been made due to public support of this program. However, much needs to be done before this disease can ever be brought under control or its deadly and crippling effects be minimized.
